A NOTE FROM YOUR ADMINISTRATION

Dear Families and Friends,

Being around elementary school children and parents provides me with an opportunity to reflect on my own parenting: both the good and the bad. Today, I'm going to share a good thing I did. My son had the hardest 5th grade science teacher, and had failed the first two tests (as in 50 and 40). He was not the only child struggling. I went into the parent/teacher conference, and told the teacher I had looked at the test, and it was indeed really hard. He had never learned any of that information before, and I thanked her. I suggested she keep setting the bar high because he would likely eventually jump to a higher level, and if he didn't, his 50 was a lot more than he knew before. He was learning so much! She responded, "You're not like the other parents, are you?" and I remember being surprised, but I guess I wasn't like the other parents. Having taught high school for a long time, I was very aware that elementary school was all about building foundations and that grades weren't nearly as important as the learning.

We all remember the class where we earned a "B," but we learned more than another class where we earned an "A." We are building skills in elementary school; we are growing our academic muscles so that we're ready for the big game in high school, college, and/or graduate school. This is the beginning, not the end, and when you're filling out your college applications, no one is looking at your 5th grade report card. I'm not saying it's not important, but the learning is much more important, and having that understanding can help you to not sweat the small stuff.

Similarly, your child's relationship with God is the most important relationship they will ever have. That is truly the big picture! Please don't let a 5th grade science test, or a basketball game, or art contest trump anything you can do to foster that relationship. They are watching you, and you are modeling that relationship for them RIGHT NOW! This is the time to create those Catholic family rituals such as saying grace each night, saying your prayers before bed, volunteering as a family at a soup kitchen on a day off, and attending mass together each Holy Day. We all struggle in this world, and we need God's grace to help us.

Cheerfully in Christ,

Mrs. Aileen Briggs, principal

"The beginning of love is the will to let those we love be perfectly themselves, the resolution not to twist them to fit our own image. If in loving them we do not love what they are, but only their potential likeness to ourselves, then we do not love them: we only love the reflection of ourselves we find in them" – Thomas Merton
